last kick at the Share Bill. He has sent us demonstration of the utility of the bill has not yet been given. In troth Mr Francis and Mr Whitehead have done more to prove the nest for such a bill than Mr Keswick himself. We will introduce Mr Francis to Mr Whitehead. They will find that their intellects are what might be termed complementary; and the introduction may lead to valuable co-operation for the benefit of the colony. Mr Francis, in his speech at the Chamber of Commerce, said :- Well, now, don't forget that every one of these contracts as soon as issued. may be resold. Say a contract is issued for ten chares mentioned by number, the manto whom he has sold it has those shares under his control, and he salis them to some one else, and these ten shares are sold, if there is a little excitement in the market, to fifty or one hundred people before settling day. If that could be checked it might do some good. Mr Whitehead, with his Anderson, Brown, ' Campbell, 'Dicker, Evana,' France and Graham who are cook concerned in transactions with one lot of 100 Dock theres for September delivery, proves that the Bill will proceedy have such a pheck as is desired by Mir Francis and by every right-thinking man. The indefinite selling of the same lot of shares extending over a period of three or four months is a species of short-selling, and cannot but be detrimental to the interests of the companies whose shares are thus gainbled with and to the general interests of the Colony. If Mr Keswick's Bill has a tendency, as Mr Whitehead shows, to countered this injurious speculation and to render speculators m re cautious, it will do a wast amount of good. WE (N.C. Daily News) are informed that tolegrams have been received of the diffioulties of a Banking Company in London connected with the River Plate, which paid 10 per cent. dividend last year. The Lon-

Any scheme that could raise the people morally higher and make them better citizens and nobler men, would be a scheme worth the costs of all merely temporal interests. If therefore it can be shown that the modern missionaries by their present modes of preaching Christiagainst the people. But can it be shown? Christianity which the modern missionaries means of making men morally higher. better and nobler, one would surely think that the best of the nation-and it is not The Viceroy's educational schemes have denied that there are still good and noble men in China-would be the people most

I appeal therefore to avery foreigner in China wh has any opportunity of judgings sak his conscience and say whether the carrying out of this part of the programme.

If the exchange of perishable commodities is necessary and valuable, how much more so is the interchange of imperishable ideas between nations. If then it can be shown that the missionery enterprise in China is an intellectual movement ; that the missionaries are bringing light painful lack of knowledge of the subject Robinson, M.A., F. III -Works of charity. This, although surely a well deserving one, is, it must be admitted. a secular work, and as such must be judged by the balance of merely temporal interests. If the Christain missions in China are to be but a mere scheme of charity, let it I. -Now this was the real legitimate proved that, as a charity, it is worth its object for which the Chinese Government | cost. No doubt the Protestant hospital and Catholic orphanage are the means of ing of Christianity in Chins. As originally doing good to a number of individual Chinese. But can it be shown that even this amount of good is an adequate compensation for the outlay in money alone, apart from other considerations, which the people through their Government, have had to pay for the special protection and indemnification of the missionaries in China? I should think the interest of all the money anity in China, are or have the remotest | which has been thus spent alone would pay hope of carrying out this object, then, I for an infinitely larger and more efficient say, let them be protected and, if need be, staff of mere accular doctors and nurses. supported by gunboats and grape shot (European if you will) to do the good which these mission institutions are now aupposed If the mere embracing of the forms of to do. If then the Christian missions are to be regarded as a charity for alleviating are bringing into China, were really the Chinese suffering, let me ask again, whether the work actually done is worth the enormous sums of money which the missionaries are so loud in proclaiming that they, forsooth, are spending every year for the benefit of Chinese ! But is it so ! say, how much of the millions which the people in Europe and America subscribe for the support of the missions, goes among Protestants, in the county of Ar. of opinion that the matter had been aban is rapidly assuming an air of completion, most educated Chinese to any whether such actually to the alleviating of Chinese sufferof a mile, its numerous students quarters, tion of their national faith and culture maintenance of the missionaries and their wives, to the building of their fine houses

But my object here is not to have the mere wanton entification of speaking home truths to the missionaries. I have now shown you that their work of evangelising is a failure. I have proved that their pretence to teach science and carry intellectual enlightenmentis either au imposture uza delusion. I have further shown that, regarded as a mere scheme of charity, the whole missionary enterprise in China, taken at its best, is but a huge scheme of charity for unemployed professional persons and as such, not worth its cost even in the money spent on its support. And my ob ject in showing this is to ask every intelli gent and disinterested foreigner to sav. if he finds what I have shown (make what exception and modifications he will) to be substantially correct. I ask him to say whether this huge and worthiess scheme of charity should be allowed to imperilas at this moment it threatens more than ever to do-not only the lives and properties of four hundred million Chinese, but also the large commercial, industrial and other interests which the people of every nation in Europe and America have now at stake in this country. > is either a palpable imposture or a delu- case, 18 9.) This, then, I say, is the real burning grisvance of the masses of the Chinese people against the presence of the missionaries in China: the fact that this class of what I have called the unemployed professional persons from Europe and America. with a comitatus of the Chinese outcasts. their converts, should be let louse upon the country with no other restraint to keep them from insulting and injuring except their mere profession of godliness. This. let me here emphasise, is the root of the hatred of foreigners among the maues of the Chinese people, whereas that which I have shown under II is the root amoug the educated classes. The missionaries are thus responsible for these, the only two deep causes of the hatred of foreigners among the Chinese. But all the miseries which the Uhristian missions have brought upon Unina may be summed up in that one ugly disbolic fact! the Taiping rebellion, which I have already called the Rebellion of the Chinese Outcasts of the Christian Missions in China. It was this rebellion which has changed the face of what we once fondly and proudly called our Flowery Land as from the face of a smiling maiden into that of an old haggard

I will only here spend a few words to: show that the presence of the missionary in China is also a danger and an injury to oreign interests. I need here only misevery intelligent foreigner to consider what an old experienced foreign Consul once said to me: that what permanently infures the Chinese must in the end also infuse the foreigners. Therefore if there is any truth n what I have shown, that the missionaries, instead of doing good, do real harm to the Chinese, it follows necessarily that the presence of the missionaries is also an injury to foreigners. But I have said that the missionaries are also really responsible for the Uninese hatred of foreigners. Now augely the hatred of the Chinese cannot possibly do the foreigners any good. At this critical state of China, I maintain that this hatred is threatening to do a great deal of harm to the large commercial and other interests which preigners have now in China All silly and sentimental hatreds ought, of course, to be put down. But the hatred that is just in the core of it. I am convinced, no amount of shells and grape shot can put down. Those who will try to do it will only demoralise and in the end injure themselves. The missionaries are now clamorous for gunboats, and would lead the foreign public to believe that the officials are merely selfish in asking foreigners. not to make a display of gunboats in these missionary riofs. But those who know the temper of the people ought. I think. to tell the foreign public that the first shot from a foreign gunbuat fired in a missionary cause will be the signal of a war not against the Government—as our foreign wars have hitherto then but a war against the Chinese people. The missionaries have been loud in their descinciation of the opium war's but what will they say to a minalongry wer, of which we are now on the eve unless there is enough of common serse, if not the Benss of justice among disinterested foreigners, to prevent it. I appeal therefore to this common sense, this sense of justice among Loreigners, to say whether the time is not come when the foreign Covernments should be saked in the interests alike of Chinese and foreigners to undertake, if not the entire withdrawal, at least toma modification of the missionary enterprise in China which I have shown at present to be a mere worthless scheme of charity for unemployed professional per-sous from Europe and America. I have now spoken what I have long years meditated and heatated, from personal and other deeper considerations, to speak. But now I have spoken .... So hill mir Gott: ich kan nicht anders.
